where he attended a general conference of his church in Philadelphia and delivered the lectures printed in his book, to large congregations. I only wonder that some lover of souls did not take him up and get him to make a tour of the country, preaching in the great cities of the North. He has visited us and we are charmed with his gentlemanly manners and delightful conversation. He is very attractive out of the pulpit or in. I don't know whether he will receive my gospel or not, but if I can only be used to teach this gifted man "the way of the LORD more perfectly," I shall begin to see why the dear LORD led me to Landour rather than half a dozen more likely places I could name. He reminds me of "Apollo" every time I think of him. He is truly an eloquent man. He has kindly asked me to present for him on the 10th of next month, when I have promised to do so, I long to tell him and his people what the LORD has taught me. Our dear old Brother Bailey is one of his principal supporters. It is pitiful to see the way the devil has succeeded in chopping up this little hill community into bits, so that each little fragment of its society is closely confined in its narrow ecclesiastical pew, over which it glares with hostile and jealous eyes at the rest. The old, sad story which ought to be the millennium will mend. Ever in Jesus,

GEO. O. BARNES.

The Distinguishing Characteristic of the Clog-Dance—Jingles and Rattles—Judges in the Cellar—On the London Variety Stage.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.] Roller skating is merely dancing on wheels. Like walking, it helps the young lady who engages in it to a graceful carriage, by teaching her to insensibly hold herself erect so that the center of gravity shall be where nature designed. The first hour on skates also shows a young woman that, like all things else, her feet will only do their perfect work after a measure of education.

"There is no doubt," said a "professor," "that roller skating is attracting general attention to the education of the lower classes. Many of the ladies, high in social circles, and children are learning to dance than ever before. Many of them learn the fancy steps, such as jigs, clogs, hornpipes, etc." "In teaching a lady to do a clog-dance," the professor continued, "the very first thing is to teach her to roll her feet, as it is technically called. This is the key of the whole business, and when a dancer can do this successfully the remainder of the lesson is comparatively easy. Rolling one's foot is merely raising the hip, turning the foot in and striking the toe on the floor. The whole motion must be gone through with gracefully and without effort. As the right side of the body is generally more flexible than the left—simply because it has been used more freely—I generally begin rolling the left foot first, in order to contract the usual tendency in favor of the right."

"The distinguishing characteristic of the clog-dance is the clear, bell-like tap of the toe or heel on the floor. The slightest shuffling ruins the effect, while in jig-dancing shuffling is the prime merit. In a jig the sand is relied on for what may be called the music, while in the clog the shoes make the melody. Jingles are inserted in a great many clogs, and what do you think they are made of?"

"Give it up." "In many cases of the old-fashioned coppers, a hole is dug in the heel of the clog, and a cent set in so that its broad side is flush with the surface of the heel. Then it is fastened through the middle with a screw, and is left to play loosely in the socket. Other devices are of course used to reach the same effect, but jingles and rattles have seen their day. There was a time when it was necessary to go to England to see the clog-dancing in its glory. The people over there take much more interest in such things than we do, and the judging between the comparative merits of two dances is considered a very serious piece of business."

"The judges generally retire into the cellar, we may call it, under the stage, there to remain until both dancers have separately gone through a series of steps. They have no knowledge, of course, as to which dancer makes the first exhibition and as the ringing of the clogs is even more distinct under than above the floor, the merits of the dancer can be readily judged without a possibility of the judge seeing the dancer and allowing his decision to be biased by personal prejudice."

Here the professor grew emphatic, and tapped the writer on the chest with his forefinger. "But let the American dancer go on the English stage, among the English people, in a concert hall, and it is dollars to cents that he will break down before he has danced ten minutes."

"Why?" "Because they are much more thorough over there than we are. The artist who makes his appearance on a London variety stage must understand his business thoroughly. Supporting his legs is dancing a hornpipe, the audience are ten to one to shout 'Give us a reel' or 'Give us a dead march' and the orchestra will immediately desert the hornpipe and drop into a reel or a dead march without giving the dancer a moment's warning. Few of our men can stand that ordeal. They have a repertoire of some half a dozen dances, and continue grinding out those dances, with variations, to the end of the chapter."

The Hale Old Kaiser.

[Berlin Letter.]

The Emperor William of Germany attended a ball lately given by the Italian ambassador, and seemed to enjoy himself greatly. He accepts neither helping arm nor support; his hair is not more than gray, and he still wears it in that lock brought over the center of his head and tied with a minute thread to insure its security. His spiked helmet does not seem heavy to him in the least, and his bright eyes and spectacles eyes recognize men and women at any distance.

His memory is prodigious. As an instance of it, he found himself unexpectedly face to face with the daughter of his hostess, who had not visited Berlin for a great number of years, and, at once remembering her, addressed her in German as of yore, and, alluding to some little joke of that long ago, mentioned the name of one of two officers fallen at Gravelotti who were her partners then.

GARRARD COUNTY DEPARTMENT.

Lancaster.

—The Lancaster Juvenile club will give a lawn party in the spacious yard of H. C. Herring on Wednesday evening, June 10.

—License was issued last week for the marriage of Mr. William Pingleton, of Rockcastle, to Miss Lena Robinson, of this county.

—Miss Nellie Hopper has returned from Georgetown. Miss Ella Joplin, of Mt. Vernon, and Miss Smith, of Upper Garrard, were guests of Mrs. Butler Engleman.

—The pretty College young ladies left for their respective homes Friday morning and many of our young men look sad. At the train one of the boys was moved to shed tears when bidding his girl goodbye.

—The first annual commencement exercises of Garrard Female College were held at the Christian church in the presence of a large and fashionable audience. The exercises were opened with prayer by Elder W. I. Fowle, and after sacred music by Echhorn's Orchestra, Miss Eliza E. Smith, of this place, delivered the salutatory address, entitled "Life is what we make it." Miss Smith was followed by Miss Emma Y. Browning, of Mays Lick, Ky., with a thesis, "The Rhetoric of Nature." "The Mind's Eye" was next read, by Miss Lida Bowen, of Ruddle's Mills, Ky., and then Miss Emma J. Lewis, of Vail, Ky., delivered a thesis, "The End not Yet." The subject chosen by Miss Bertie Collier was "On every high there lies repose." After Miss Collier, the valedictory address was delivered by Miss Addie Foster, of Oronzio, Ky. The presentation of diplomas and address to the graduates by Prof. Zellers next followed, and after a class benediction by Rev. T. M. Vaughan, the exercises were closed with a prayer by Rev. W. O. Goodloe. The young ladies were handsomely attired in white and cream colored costumes and looked beautiful as angels. They were the recipients of many exquisite floral offerings that well attested the popularity in which they are held by the people of Lancaster and Garrard county.

—The seventh annual June Hop, under the auspices of the German Dancing Club, was given at the City Hall on last Thursday evening and like its predecessors, was a brilliant success in every way. Good attendance, splendid music by Echhorn and a delightful evening for dancing made this one of the most elegant hops ever given in Lancaster. From 10 o'clock until 4 the next morning the "Tipping" was kept up and the general verdict of the participants was that it was an exceptionally pleasant affair. Appended is a list of the lady dancers and their costumes:

The Dripping Springs Picnic.

[To the Editor of The Interior Journal.]

DRIPPING SPRINGS, JUNE 6.—The many good people from adjoining counties who have heretofore patronized this unrivaled place for invalids and seekers of pleasure will hereafter recognize but two familiar features—the "old time" low prices of this "old time" place and the old Spring. The old tumble down buildings of yore have disappeared and in their stead are new ones of neat structure and ample room, erected upon principles of health and comfort, all admirably ventilated and so arranged as to suit the most fastidious.

The elaborate bill of fare did not in the least fall short, as can be attested by all who dined at table d'hote, notwithstanding it had been industriously predicted that such a bill could not be gotten up this far from the city. Mr. Slaughter has determined to make these Springs what our county and everywhere else would gladly see them—a place of comfort and pleasure, unrestrained by conventionalities and aristocratic ceremonies.

Hundreds availed themselves of his hospitality and numerous designs for their pleasure to-day. These "Saturday entertainments" he intends to continue in order to show the people who may be drawn here from everywhere and elsewhere that he is prepared to entertain even more satisfactorily than advertised.

The bunches of beauties that grouped on the hillside were numerous and bright as the wild flowers that bloom among the ferns of the native woodland. These were not "born to blush unseen." Among the ladies in the ball room were Misses Nannie Slaven, Jennie Buchanan, Annie, Maggie and Jean Buchanan, Maggie Smith, Allie Brown, —Gibson, Kittie Douglas, Robbie Yeakle, Lida Elmsdon, Ella Joplin, Clyde and Sallie Totten, Millie Tatem, Jennie Vinton, Annie Holmes, Irene Dillon, Eva Adams, Ida Pettus, Nannie Kennedy, Mrs. Butler Engleman and many others. But many of these ladies adhered strictly to their church rules and did not participate in the dance. In the evening a delegation arrived from C. O. Springs, among whom was Mr. Howard, the manager, and all were treated with the kindest hospitality. A more enjoyable affair would indeed be hard to find and so to a more respectful and orderly assembly of people. Mr. Slaughter was well pleased with all and we are glad to learn from him that notwithstanding his great outlay in preparing so great a feast, he reaped a satisfactory profit.

CUTAWAY.

The postmaster at Nesbitt, Miss., is the poorest paid official of the kind in the United States. Last year he received from the Government only twelve cents, but this was enough for the amount of business he did. He sold three newspaper wrappers, two three cent stamps and three postal cards.

"President Greer, let me introduce to you our new Minister, Mr. McLane."

"Aha, Monsieur Maccalane, I am delighted. I am charmed. I have often waited to meet you, for I have heard frequently of your rare fine liver pills. Die ces Monsieur Greer, Monsieur." —[Pittsburg Telegraph]

That Dirty Dandruff.

Dandruff is dirty and disagreeable in every way. It itches the scalp continually and is accompanied by a hardly less annoying sensation of itching. The scalp is diseased. There is nothing in the world so thoroughly adapted to this trouble as Parker's Hair Balm. It cleanses and heals the scalp, stops the itching hair and restores its original softness, gloss and color. Is not only highly perfumed, an elegant dressing. Very economical, a only a small occasional application keeps the hair in perfect condition.

What Parents Fear.

Many persons—especially parents—object to many quick cures as likely to engender or encourage a love for strong drink. They are right. Better die of disease than of drunkenness. The use of Parker's Tonic does not involve this danger. It not only builds up the system, curing all ailments of the stomach, liver and kidneys, but it stimulates without intoxicating and absolutely cures the appetite for liquor.
